ISDA needs a cadre of private practice veterinarians and veterinary technicians willing to undergo training in animal health emergency response. These professionals may be employed by the ISDA in case of an animal health emergency. Applicants will be selected for training based on type of practice or specialty training, geographic region served, capacity to receive E-mail, and commitment as demonstrated by signing this application (type name if submitting by E-mail). Small and large animal practitioners are needed.

Veterinarians and technicians will be compensated for training from funds made available through a USDA grant. Compensation for an 8-hour training session will be $125.00 for veterinarians and $35.00 for veterinary technicians. Continuing education credit will be awarded for most training.
