They are NOT regulated by the FFA. I hear this when calling the local airport to report unsafe flying and application practices. DUSTING is an innocuous term for spreading poison into the environment. They need more regulation, not less. I live on a farm in Jerome, Idaho. I've seen bees literally falls from the sky on a TOO windy day. Ive had fertilizer dropped into my yard. I've seen careless disregard for the few regulations they have in keeping the poison on the intended target. 30 feet from a home yard and no regulations for near schools. The high school here is regularly DUSTED. The chemicals cause cancer and neurological damage such as Parkinson's disease. We have an epidemic of auto-immune disorders in Magic Valley, according to several internists' medical practices in BOISE! Please wake up to this environmental nightmare. Thank you. Cherri Suter
